Poets Corner

This month's poem was written by Sophie Allen who is Joan Wyburn's Granddaughter. Sophie read the poem at Joan's funeral.

To The Best Nan

To the best Nan, I'm always thinking of you,
Because you loved me as much as I love you.

I want you to come home, come back,
But you're already here, always will be in fact!

You're every gust of wind, you're every drop of rain,
You're the widest ocean, you're the smallest lane.
You're the brightest day, you're the darkest night,
You're the one Nan, you're my version of a shining knight!

Memories within me of all our picnics and games,
I love how our memories wouldn't fit into a million frames.
I loved our new years eves and our own Christmases two,
I hate that now I have to look to the sky to speak to you!

You weren't just a Nan, a mate, a best mate, you were my soul mate,
You, me, mum and David, we were pure fate.
We knew each other like the back of our hands,
One close knit family and that's how it stands!

A star lit sky at night,
The smallest one shining bright.
I know for a fact you're always in my heart,
Because you are me, and we'll never be apart!

So I'll look up to the starry sky at night,
The brightest one, flying like a kite.
Not to cry myself to sleep is a fight,
But that doesn't mean I don't try, right?

So I tried to write about the most perfect Nan,
With the biggest smile, she sang and sang.
Nanny, I love you, I miss you, I'll see you again,
In my head, in my heart, you'll always remain!

Closing my eyes reveals nothing but your beautiful face,
But you're up there, in a better place.
So Nan, fly like a bird, be wild and free,
Re-live your life, look over me!

The Prophetic Word

One of the ways that we experience God's presence in our worship is through the prophetic word. During April it was very clear that God is ready to move us to a deeper level but that He needs us to make a deeper commitment to Him

Please prayerfully consider these two prophecies and ask the Holy Spirit to help you to examine yourself to reveal how God wants to transform you.

I gave my all for you why do you not give your all for Me? I rose from the dead to give you life I took away your sin. I took the keys of death and hell only I can banish you there so take Me fully into your hearts. Look nowhere else for satisfaction put Me first in all that you do so that at the end I can say 'well done my good and faithful servant'.

I require your hearts to love Me, I require your feet to walk for Me. I require your hands to work for Me, I require you to die for Me if necessary as I died for you. Do not hold back I gave My all for You. Come.
